Pucksters Take Lead In Ball Series on Sunday

Defeat Staveley 6-4 in First Game; Draw 5-5 in Second; Tom Kroll Pitched Both Games

Angelo's hand of ball hawks, accompanied by a large contingent of local fans motored to Staveley on Sunday afternoon, where they engaged Staveley in what was supposed to be the final games of a best three-out-of-five games series. At Coleman the teams split even, winning one game each.

In the first game at Staveley Kroll took the mound for the Pucksters. Catching. He allowed three runs in the first three innings, but his team mates brought him back into the game by scoring one run in the third and three in the sixth, to give him a one run lead to work on. Staveley evened up the game in their half of the sixth inning. Kroll was pitching good ball and striking out many opposing batters. In the sixth inning Coleman put everything they had into their play, and Slim Haynes weakened under the terrific battering, to allow two runs to be scored. Kroll maintained mastery of the situation, when facing the Staveley batters in the last inning, and set them down with no damage done and a 6-4 victory for the Pucksters.

In the second game Kanik took the mound for the Pucksters. He was, however, unable to control his speed, and hit two batters and issued one base on balls before being taken out in the third inning. Iron man Kroll volunteered for active duty and was sent in to stem the Staveley uprising, which he did successfully. Staveley was leading 4-2 at the end of the third and increased it to 5-2 at the end of the fourth inning. Pucksters went to work in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings and scored one run in each to tie the game. Kroll was the hero of the game, with a mighty home run in the eighth inning, when there were two men out and two strikes on him. He held Staveley scoreless in the last inning. Kroll struck out nine men in the first game and nine more in the second for a grand total of eighteen.

Dick Sluggs won the Pattinson Hardware award, a valuable pair of baseball shoes. He got into the second game and in two times at bat got one hit for a 100% average which was sufficient to win him the shoes.

The next clash between these teams will be next Sunday at Staveley. Should Pucksters win, the series will be over and Pucksters will have successfully defended their intermediate title. Should Staveley win, a sixth and final game will be played at Blairmore the following Sunday. It is hoped to have this last game, if it is found necessary to be played, brought to Coleman, the largest and most enthusiastic ball town in the Pass.

On page 8 of this issue Contractor D'Appolonia has an advertisement calling for tenders to demolish the two buildings. Any person or group of persons desiring lumber for building purposes have to make a bid, abiding by certain conditions and specifications, which can be had by making application to Mr. D'Appolonia's office in the Excel Builders' Supply building.

APPEALS MADE IN COLE'S THEATRES TO BUY WAR LOAN BONDS

At Cole's Theatres in the Pass towns appeals were made by local speakers to the people to buy Second War Loan Bonds. An urgent appeal by the Federal minister of finance asks that small investors buy as many of the bonds as possible, and the theatre management co-operated in the appeal by arranging to have appeals made to the Bellevue, Blairmore, and Coleman theatres on three nights. By this means increased local interest was aroused which it is hoped will result in an increased sale of bonds in the Pass towns.

Reg. Jones' Brother A Prisoner of War

Left Behind at Evacuation of Dunkirk; Cable Received He is Alive and Prisoner of War.

A cable was received from England on Tuesday morning by Reg. Jones bearing the glad tidings that his brother, Ronald, age 27 years, was alive and a prisoner of war. Ronald had been left behind in the evacuation of Dunkirk and his parents and brothers had thought him dead. It was with great delight that the news of him being alive was received by his brothers, Reg. and Wyndham, and regardless of the fact that although he is a prisoner of war and life may be almost unbearable the main thing is that he is alive and that some day he will again be with his family.

A man may say too much even on the best subject—English.

Further samples will be taken further up the creek in an attempt to localize the contamination. The results of these samples will be made known probably next week.

RED CROSS SUPPLIES NEEDED FOR ICELAND

Many Canadian Soldiers There Need Woollens and Medical Supplies

Regular shipments of woollens, medical supplies and other materials are sent to Canada's soldiers who are on guard at one of the outposts of the Empire, the strategically located island of Iceland. To relieve the burden on workers in Britain, where the air attacks have created tremendous needs, the Canadian Red Cross is assigned the task of supplying Iceland's needs. To keep up this work, and the countless other duties placed on the Red Cross, money is needed. When the appeal is made to you, give and give more than you can spare.

C.P. Manion, of Lions International, is Soliciting Local Men; Has Secured Several Names

C.P. Manion, special representative of Lions International, has been in town for the past day or two contacting several young men for the purpose of forming a Lions club in Coleman. To date he has secured several names and has had favorable response from a number of others.

It is also the purpose of the club to create a spirit of good fellowship among groups from all parts of the town.

War Loan 16 Million Short of Objective

Canada's second war loan cash subscriptions on Wednesday night totalled $283,940, 1940 leaving $16,060,000 to be subscribed before the total of money needed for war purposes is reached. Reports indicate a good response from coast to coast on the part of private Canadian investors, but many more small subscriptions are needed. Many private and corporation subscribers have increased their earlier subscriptions. Banks have indicated that more people are taking advantage of the special borrowing facilities available for purchases of second war loan bonds.

Work Starts on Grand Union Improvements

Kitchen Being Eliminated; Work to Start in Earnest Within Next Few Days.

Contractor D'Appolonia commenced work on the Grand Union hotel this week which will result in the entire ground floor being radically changed. Tenders have been asked to demolish the two buildings east of the hotel so that accommodation for further improvements to the hotel proper can be made.

At the present time laborers are busy tearing the inside out of the old kitchen and refrigerator room. In a few days work will commence on the dining room. Both the dining room and kitchen will house the men's beer parlour.

Work on the improvements will be started in earnest as soon as the old buildings are removed and the construction of the ladies' refreshment parlour can be started.

WIDEN ROAD EAST

Town Foreman John Nikituk and his crew have been scraping the side of the bluff on the east end of Main street. According to Mr. Nikituk two to three feet will be taken away from the bottom of the hill making the roadway that much wider.

Several weeks ago the council inspected this part of the roadway and it was decided that if they did decide to widen the road, they would ask the Highways Department to shoulder part of the cost, as Main street and number three highway are one and the same road.

Reduce The Ash Heap

Waste which can be prevented is inexcusable at all times. In time of war waste that can be avoided is more than inexcusable. It becomes nothing less than criminal negligence.

The importance of preventing loss and of reclaiming waste material which can be put to useful purposes is recognized by all the belligerents in this war, enemy countries as well as those of the Allies. Appeals are constantly being made and organizations are being set up to prevent loss of materials which can be converted into weapons of offence and defence or which can be used to replace other materials needed for similar purposes, and to prevent waste of all kinds.

Every article and every commodity which, in ordinary times, is regarded as valueless and tossed out into the rubbish heap, but can now be saved and made to do duty in some form or another, is playing a part in our main objective, that of winning the war. To the extent that resources, which can be made of value, are not exhausted, to that extent the winning of the war is being retarded. Every "stop the waste" campaign in Great Britain, Canada and other units of the Empire plays a role in the overthrow of Hitler and Mussolini and their Nazi and Fascist hordes.

It is because we are at war, that fire prevention week in Canada, scheduled for early October, assumes greater importance than ever. For uncontrolled fire every year in this country takes an enormous toll of resources in human life and property, resources which could be of great value in the conflict which is being waged to conserve our lives, our property and those more intangible but none the less realistic resources—our liberties.

Losses Are Substantial

Without even considering the loss of life and the suffering it entailed, uncontrolled fire in Canada last year resulted in loss of property to the value of over $24,000,000, and that is a loss which handicapped Canada's war effort to an even greater extent than that figure represents.

Property loss by fire predicated the employment of money for replacement which should have been available for ordinary commercial channels or for direct war effort. It means the use of materials and energy, which otherwise would have been available, directly or indirectly, for the prosecution of the war. Every dollar in coin or credit, every pound of material and every hour of energy, utilized in replacing loss which could have been prevented, represents that much drag on the country's war effort.

There is another aspect to the question which should not be overlooked, and that is the fact that where insurance is carried, the loss represents a loss to the community at large. One is apt to hear the comment after a disastrous conflagration—"Oh, well, that's all right. It was covered by insurance." Those who blithely dismiss the matter in this happy-go-lucky indifference for loss and divides the loss. The higher the loss, the lucky manner, forget that they themselves are sharing part of the burden of the loss, for every loss is reflected in fire insurance rates which all who seek that protection must pay. Fire insurance does not prevent loss. It greater will be the tax on the community for protection, for fire insurance rates are based on experience.

A Valuable Contribution

An analysis of the figures of fire losses throughout the Dominion in 1939 shows that the people of the prairies are not altogether guiltless in the matter of waste by fire. The three prairie provinces last year contributed $2,660,583 in property values to the fire demon. That may not appear to be high in proportion to the remainder of the Dominion, yet much of it could have been prevented, as a survey of the causes demonstrates.

In the three provinces and, in fact, throughout the Dominion, dwellings head the list in monetary loss and the careless smoker is responsible for the greatest toll. In Saskatchewan, typical of the sister prairie provinces, agencies responsible for property by fire last year in order of demerit were: 1, The careless smoker; 2, Defective stoves and furnaces; 3, Defective chimneys and flues; 4, Children playing with matches; 5, Careless handling of gasoline and petroleum products.

It does not require much reflection to determine that all fires attributable to these five major causes need not have occurred, that all of them could have been prevented with the exercise of reasonable care. If smokers would only see that cigarette butts and tobacco heels were extinguished, if people would periodically inspect stoves, furnaces, chimneys and flues and remedy defects, if matches were placed beyond the reach of children, if folks exercised common-sense precautions in handling gasoline and similar inflammable liquids, stores of tragic losses would be cut to the irreducible minimum.

It is important, therefore, that fire prevention week be observed, that its lessons be taken to heart, not only when they are fresh in the mind but throughout the year. If this is done, then not only will the cost of fire protection be substantially reduced and the tragedies of uncontrolled fire be almost eliminated but all will be a valuable contribution towards winning this war—the greatest and most costly of all wars.

Story Is Ended

Weisbach Mantle Of Gas-Light Era Is Now A Relic

News that the Weisbach Company, of Gloucester City, N.J., has gone out of business is surprising not because the making of gas lights has become outmoded but because the company was able to hold on for so long. The Weisbach mantles, since used for lighting in millions of homes and public places throughout the world, were the visible symbols of the "gas-light era." They supplied the illumination for the Gay Nineties, when the police wore helmets, when the rich had champagne and lobster suppers, when baseball players wore moustaches and when life moved with a quaint ponderosity. The odd part of the whole Weisbach story is that the gadget was foredoomed to extinction when it was invented in 1881 by Carl Auer, Freiherr von Weisbach, an Austrian; for his own Thomas A. Edison, five years earlier, had demonstrated the electric light. And it was not until 1890 that Auer learned the trick of making his mantles give off a white light. Electricity was slow in catching on—relatively speaking, and the Weisbachs hoarded until it had spread over the whole globe, wherever gas could be obtained. The story is ended now. The Weisbach mantle is a relic, a reminder of grandfather's heyday, which means nothing at all to the new generation.—New York Herald Tribune.

Music Lessons In War Time

Musical Education Should Be Continued In Time Of Stress

Discussing the question of music lessons in war time, Sir Ernest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, recently had this to say: "In this war to preserve civilization, when everything we have been taught to value is at stake, no sacrifice is too great to ensure a victory. The war is being fought so that our children will be in a better world. It would be a tragedy if we, in defending the civilization we treasure, failed to hand on the torch to those who follow after us. Every essential side of our children's education must be preserved at all costs."

"A child whose lessons are interrupted after he has begun to learn to play and sing will have more trouble in picking up lost threads in music than in most other subjects; music calls for a co-ordination of faculties more exacting than most subjects and every year lost means a serious setback. In some cases it may be that what began as a temporary economy may turn into a permanent loss."

"Music may seem a luxury to some, because by its very nature it calls for a very small amount of material; but, in fact, it is a very real education; it is broad, but no educational subject has proved more universally of value than music. The late Sir Ernest MacMillan of Harvard University called music 'the best mind-trainer in the curriculum' and statistics bear out the claims of experienced educationalists that, broadly speaking, boys and girls who study music are likely to be better than others at their general studies."

Entire Salvation Army Band Jolns Battalion In Australia

Most picturesque group of volunteers who have yet presented themselves for enlistment in the A.I.F. (Australia's) expeditionary force, which is now more than 50,000 strong, is an entire Salvation Army band which marched to the drill hall of the Royal Melbourne Regiment. The band leader, Arthur Gullidge, offered his 25 players as a body and within an hour they were the band of the 2-22nd Battalion, having exchanged the Salvation Army navy blue for khaki, and their caps for the Australian "digger" felt hat.

Restricted Exports Offset

Army Purchases Of Fish Will Help Canadian Industry

"Fit for the Kings Army. Foods served to Canadian Active Service Force units naturally have to measure up to a high standard, and Canadian fish foods are playing an increasingly important part in the army's ration list these days. The standard ration list of the Canadian army has recently been revised and extended with reference to fish food and at present appearing on the list are practically all kinds of fresh and frozen fish, as well as chins, lobster, crab, and dried, smoked, and canned fish. The canned fish in the rations is made up of varieties selected by the supply officer and includes such items as salmon, sardines, etc."

Canadian fish foods, rich in mineral content, healthful, nourishing, and palatable, are good for the army, and the soldiers are zealous in their enjoyment of good fish dishes. The extension of the army fish list means two things: First of all soldiers will be able to enjoy the same high quality fish dishes which are part of civilian diet. Secondly, the army purchases will help to keep the industry steady through the expansion of the home market, thus partly offsetting the adverse factor of restricted export markets brought about by war conditions in various parts of the world.—Brandon Sun.

Coffee Rationed In France

The Petain government has added coffee to the list of rationed foods for residents of unoccupied France. Other products already rationed include sugar, rice, soap, lard, spaghetti and macaroni.

There are about 8,000 official markers along the international boundary line between the U.S. and Canada.

A Profitable Industry

Farmers Who Raise Sheep Are Building On Good Foundation

Good sheep men do not need to be told that sheep are good, states the Family Herald and Weekly Star. They have in fact loyally maintained that position, even when they would have found it hard to prove the point to a chartered accountant. But now sheep are good financially as well as—morally! Authorities are always loath to commit themselves by advising farmers what crops to raise, but even the authorities have teetered out on the limb as far as sheep are concerned.

That is because they have the hardest of hard facts to back them. Canada is producing only 18,000,000 pounds of wool (on the greasy basis) and requires for domestic and military use, four or five times as much. Net imports of lamb run to 1,000,000 pounds in spite of our production of from 60 to 70 millions.

Prices for both wool and lamb are profitable, and as our shortage of domestic production is not merely a wartime phenomenon, but a normal one, the farmer who raises sheep is building—if not upon a rock at least on about as firm a foundation as there is these days.

Owing to death and emigration there are now 4,000,000 fewer Poles than when the Germans moved in. Hitler says that with the 18,000,000 remaining there are still 15,000,000 too many. Poles cannot marry without the consent of the German officials. Officially second class citizens, Poles must raise their hats to the Germans. Curfew rings at 8. Poles have to do six months work free for the Germans. Wedding rings and gold spectacle rims are confiscated. The country has been looted. All the factories, shops, hotels, and private estates have been appropriated. Early they shot a long list of business and professional men. Poles in the German part of Poland are forbidden to speak Polish. Schools are abolished for Poles. Priests must preach only in German. Was the peace of Versailles too severe?—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

United States Acquired British Warships During Spanish-American War

Bettina F. Whyte in the New York Times, says with Great Britain needing our moral and material aid in her courageous single-handed fight to preserve freedom for the world, it might be well to mention that during the Spanish-American War, when the United States was sorely in need of warships, Great Britain sold two newly completed cruisers to us. First Army Class Of Single Men Are Called For Training

Ottawa.—Single men and childless widowers of the ages from 21 to 24 years are expected to provide all the recruits necessary for Canada's immediate military training program which opens Oct. 9. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of national war services, said in an interview.

The proclamation calling the 21 to 24 year classes for training was published Saturday.

The men required for the first 30-day period of training, about 30,000 will be called by individual notices to be sent out by registrars to the 13 administrative divisions set up under national war services regulations.

First to be called will be the 21-year class and when they have been examined, registrars will work through the lists as necessary to call the 22-year class. National registration revealed about 400,000 single men and childless widowers in the four classes.

The 39 training camps provided in the present plan accommodate a total of about 30,000 men. There are to be eight 30-day periods of training in the 12 months beginning with October. This will mean 240,000 men trained a year under the scheme.

Mr. Gardiner said that following a wide margin of rejections because of physical unfitness, the four classes should provide all the recruits needed for this year unless training facilities are greatly increased.

Men to be called for the first 30-day period will be selected on a quota, and will receive by registered mail, notice to go before the 10- to 15-odd examining physicians appointed throughout the Dominion, for physical examination.

Mr. Gardiner said there was misunderstanding among industries with respect to calling men away from essential work or social occupations during the peak of their activity. He had received communications indicating a belief in some quarters that certain classes of workers might be permanently exempt.

"All physically fit men, single or childless widowers between the ages of 21 and 24 on July last, must take said 30-day training," the minister said. Any exemptions would only be temporary because of the necessities of their occupation and all men called must take their training at some period within 12 months of the call, at the discretion of the divisional registrar and board set up in each administrative division.

Those subject to call but who are in isolated areas of far northern Canada may not be called for the time being but this does not mean they are exempt, Mr. Gardiner said. Some arrangements may be made for their training at a later period.

Country Faces Invasion Unless It Joins With Free France

Calcutta.—Syrians have been warned that unless they line up with "free France" they must face German or Italian occupation, it was disclosed here.

The warning was given by Gen. de Gaulle, governor of French Equatorial Africa, which recently swung over from the Vichy government to Gen. Charles de Gaulle, and his committee of "free Frenchmen" in London.

Honorary Posts Accepted

London.—Lt. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and Major-General G. R. Pearkes of Canada's overseas forces have accepted honorary presidencies in the Canadian ex-Servicemen's Association of Great Britain. The association was formed after the first Great War by veterans of the Canadian expeditionary forces.

Raise Wheat Quota

Delivery Quota Will Be Eight Bushels Per Seeded Acre

Winnipeg.—The Canadian wheat board announced that the general wheat delivery quota will be eight bushels per seeded acre. The general quota of five bushels for each sown acre has been in force since Aug. 8.

Since the quota regulation became effective, a series of increases has boosted deliveries as high as 15 bushels for each seeded acre in 402 shipping points across the prairies. Friday night's announcement specified that points which now have quotas of eight bushels per seeded acre and more will remain as set out in previous board orders.

The announcement stressed that the board could not guarantee immediate storage space in the country for acceptance of this general increase in deliveries but promised a continuation of endeavors to distribute the total available space as fairly as possible.

The three-bushel-an-acre advance in the quota is expected to go a long way toward alleviating storage congestion on western Canada farms. In addition, it will boost the immediate income of farmers whose buying has been curtailed by the delivery restrictions. The Aug. 8 regulation also confined oats and barley deliveries to five bushels for each acre sown, but these restrictions have since been removed to permit unlimited deliveries where storage space was available. Flax and rye were not bound by delivery quotas.

Further increases in wheat delivery quotas above the original limit of five bushels per seeded acre at 142 points in western Canada were announced by the Canadian wheat board.

This makes a total of 402 shipping points with quotas varying from eight to 15 bushels per seeded acre. The original quota limited deliveries to five bushels for each acre sown in Saskatchewan.

Nazi Broadcasts

Canadians Warned To Place No Reliance On These

Ottawa.—Persons who have relatively fighting in the army, navy or air force overseas should place no reliance on announcements of lists of prisoners of war broadcast by German wireless stations, according to a memorandum from the war office at London and made known by the national defence department.

Such lists are broadcast merely to induce people to listen to German views, the announcement said, and are incomplete and often inaccurate.

"Relatives may rest assured that, without any application on their part, every endeavor is being made both abroad and at home to trace missing personnel," the memorandum stated.

Bags Italian Planes

London.—A pilot officer from Victoria, B.C., is the ace of one of the Royal Air Force squadrons operating on the Libyan frontier, and has a bag of five of Mussolini's bombers and fighters, it was disclosed. The Canadian joined the Royal Air Force two years ago. His squadron altogether has accounted for more than 30 Italian planes.

JAPANESE ENVOY

Believed most likely successor to Kamekichi Hirohito as Japanese Ambassador to the United States is Yoshikazu Akawa, above, one of Japan's leading industrialists. Hirohito was one of the many Japanese diplomats called home in a world-wide shake-up of the Japanese diplomatic corps.

Hitler's Threat

Prime Minister Churchill Says Britain Is Ready For Invasion

London.—Hitler's long threatened invasion of the British Isles is imminent. It may come tomorrow. Or next week. It may not come at all. But a grim, defiant nation is ready.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill warned in the greatest fighting speech of his career.

"These cruel, wanton, indiscriminate bombings of London," said Mr. Churchill, were just "a part of Hitler's invasion plan." Great fleets of barges have been concentrated at coastal ports and in areas extending from Norway to the Bay of Biscay, a Nazi armada to again threaten Britain.

Cautiously he said: "This wicked man, the embodiment of many forms of hatred, this monstrous product of former wrongs and shame, is now resolved to try to break our famous island race by a process of indiscriminate slaughter and destruction."

"What he has done is to kindle a fire in British hearts, here and all over the world, which will glow after all trace of the conflagration he has caused in London have been removed."

"He has lit a fire which will burn with a steady and consuming flame until the last vestiges of Nazi tyranny have been burnt out of Europe, and until the old world and the new can join hands to rebuild the temples of man's freedom and man's honor upon foundations which will not soon or easily be overthrown."

Bomb For Berlin

Nazis Say It Only Destroyed A Bed Of Roses

Berlin.—The German wireless broadcast this statement: "During a night's air raid on Berlin an incendiary bomb dropped only 10 feet from Reich Propaganda Minister Goebbels' official residence. The bomb weighed about 15 pounds. It tore a big hole in the minister's garden, but all that was destroyed was a bed of roses."

Very pleased with the smart appearance of the guard of boy scouts and Cubs at Frederick, N.B., His Excellency the Governor-General stops to speak to some of the younger boys, who are very happy at the great honour. Note the smile on the face of the young cub just in front of His Excellency.

Time Element Is Strongly On The Side Of British Victory

Washington.—As the storm over London reaches a new crescendo, there are widely scattered war developments elsewhere to strengthen Britain's confidence that time is her ally and that victory in the present crisis means final victory.

Centring on the Mediterranean, they lend support to the idea stressed by British leaders that a strong element of desperation compels the preparations of Hitler and Mussolini to strike quickly for a decision.

Gibraltar reports that six French warships have just headed westward into the Atlantic. They sailed past the silent guns of the fortress at noon. Britain's allies or there would have been no word of their movement.

Earlier, the arrival at Gibraltar of 30 or more warplanes from French Morocco was noted from Spain.

In Washington, axis uneasiness over the Mediterranean is hinted by authoritative information that the Vichy government has rejected a demand that some 200,000 French empire troops in north Africa be disarmed lest they imperil Italy. It was France's collapse at home that makes feasible an Italian drive to attempt to conquer Egypt—while Il Duce now threatens—by releasing troops from the western frontiers of Libya.

From Greece come rumors that reinforced British naval forces have thrown a blockade around Italy's strategic Dodecanese islands in the eastern Mediterranean, which already have been shelled and bombed.

Rome acknowledged the likelihood that the acquisition of 50 United States destroyers will enable Britain to add further to the forces determined to shatter Mussolini's dream of empire.

Meanwhile, though Marshal Graziani appears to have a margin of two to one or more for an Italian land and air drive to cut the British Empire lifeline at Suez, British commanders, confident over the ultimate outcome, say Italy is faced at the moment with an uncomfortable now-or-never dilemma.

With the two main Fascist armies isolated by sea from home supply bases and by geography from each other, the Italian commanders can not afford to dissipate munitions and equipment in inconclusive fighting.

Il Duce, like his axis partner, is under urgent pressure from time and events to strike, or at least to feint in force, in the hope that a Nazi victory on the war's main front may save Italy from heavy losses.

Both he and the Nazi Fuehrer are in a measure helpless victims of forces they unleashed. Certainly, once an invasion of Britain is launched, there can be no turning back to Hitler without disaster.

Wireless Training

Montreal.—An additional 120 air men were graduated from No. 1 wireless school, Royal Canadian Air Force, here, as they completed six months of intensive radio training. Like the first class of 175 who were graduated last month, they will be posted to service with units throughout Canada.

Appeal To Knitters

Toronto.—Mrs. Wallace Campbell, national chairman of the women's war work committee of the Canadian Red Cross, appealed to women of Canada to knit turtle-neck sweaters, seamen's stockings, two-way mitts and helmets for a Canadian force "at an unnamed location."

Indians Donate Generously

Ottawa.—The Indian affairs branch of the department of mines and technical resources reported that Indian donations to war services total nearly $3,000. In addition many subscriptions have gone directly to local organizations, while donations of furs, clothing and other articles have been made.

Burn War Saving Stamps

Toronto.—More than 5,100 war savings stamps with a total value of nearly $1,200 went up in a cloud of smoke at the Canadian corps rally here. It was the first beacon in a series of fires to be lighted across Canada by the corps to aid the Dominion's war effort.

All Medical Men Are Called Upon To Be Army Examiners

Ottawa.—All licensed medical practitioners in Canada have been asked to co-operate with the national war services department in selecting 30,750 physical fit men for the first 30-day compulsory military training period scheduled to open Oct. 9.

Notice has been sent to the 10,500 odd registered doctors by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of national war services, appointing them "examining physicians," and instructing them in their duties.

To these physicians, located in every part of the Dominion, falls the task of examining probably 40,000 men in order to find the necessary number of fit men for the initial training group. A wide margin is to be allowed for rejections on physical grounds.

Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche, associate deputy minister of national war services, making the announcement on behalf of the minister, said in view of the short time in which to carry out the examinations this would constitute the largest operation of its kind in Canadian medical history.

This department, which carried out national registration last month, has the responsibility of delivering to the national defence department physical fit men for compulsory training at 39 centres in such numbers and at such times as they are requested.

Gen. LaFleche said a proclamation would be published, notifying all single men and childless widowers of the ages of 21 and 24 inclusive that they are liable to be called for compulsory training.

Immediately thereafter, registrars in the 13 administrative divisions established for purposes of the draft, will notify, by registered letter, those who are to report for examination for the first 30-day training period.

There are more than 75,000 single men or childless widowers in the 21-year-old class who will be subject to the first call, but in view of the fact that a 25 per cent. rejection for physical unfitness is expected, and the possibility that a more or less divisions might not have its quota of that age class, some may be taken from the 22-year-class to make up the deficiency.

The first proclamation will treat all who are subject to call as being at the age they had reached July 1 last. Subsequent proclamations will deal with the question of those who have entered the 21-year-class or advanced beyond it since registration.

Registration covered all who had reached the age of 16. Men called for examination will be given three days from receipt of their notice to present themselves to the physician of their choice, Gen. LaFleche said. Only in the most isolated districts will this place the potential recruits under any expense of great inconvenience.

It is not the intention to call out men engaged in farm work for the first training period and in other ways the department will endeavor to so arrange the call that essential industrial undertakings will not be unduly interrupted, so long as such workers get in their period of training within 12 months.

Plans for carrying out the physical examinations were completed at conferences between the departmental officials and officers of the Canadian Medical Association.

The fee for each examination, to be paid monthly by the government, is $1.

Any man found to be physically under category C1 as defined in the instructions, will be rejected for training at present. This category covers men who are "free from serious organic disease, who are able to stand home service conditions, and able to walk five miles."

There will be no X-ray examinations of the chest such as are provided for those enlisting in the Canadian Active Service Force, except possibly in the case of those, first rejected, who are called for re-examination by medical boards which will operate throughout each administrative division.

When a man is finally rejected for training he will be given a certificate, serially numbered and issued by headquarters of the national war services department.

Those who are passed as fit will await further orders which will be sent, along with transportation, instructing them where and when to report for the 30-day training period.

From that moment they will have finished with the national war services department and will thereafter receive instructions from the national defence department.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

MOST urgent this week is the appeal of Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance, to people of moderate means, and particularly wage-earners, to invest in Canada's War Loan Bonds. Large corporations have invested heavily, but it is particularly desirable that the smaller investor take up a considerable portion of the loan. These bonds not only save for us the money invested, with interest, but probably our property, our democratic way of life and perhaps even our very lives. The Dominion of Canada represents the total securities of the resources and energies of the people and corporations and businesses in the Dominion.

IN making this appeal, one cannot help comparing conditions in Canada with those in Great Britain. The valiant people there, ordinary people like ourselves, are facing death a hundred times a day to save our Empire, and we are thrilled with admiration at their courage. The loaning of our money is trifling in comparison with their sacrifices, particularly when payment is secured and a good rate of interest is paid also.

ABOUT 150 years ago that famous militarist, Napoleon Bonaparte, ravaged most of Europe, and poised his legions for an invasion of Britain. His attempts ended in dismal failure, and the end of his career was sounded when his armies were defeated in the Battle of Waterloo, in 1815. In July of that year, finding it impossible to escape to the United States, he surrendered to Captain Maitland of the warship Bellerophon, at Rochefort, was taken to England, and sentenced to life banishment on the lonely island of St. Helena, about 600 miles off the coast of Africa. He died six years later a broken man, in body and spirit. Truly an inglorious end for a man of insatiable ambition who wanted to lord it over all of Europe. Britain proved his downfall, and it will prove the downfall of one who has followed in his footsteps. Never will Britons allow their resistance to be weakened under the terrific air raids of Germany. With the increase in fighting planes and pilots, and the men and machines Canada will send in ever increasing numbers, there can only be one end, and that is the complete overthrow of Hitler. Winston Churchill has pledged the British people to continue the struggle till this is accomplished, and he has the entire Empire behind him to do its part towards achieving final and decisive victory. The British bulldog is fighting mad, and will not let go till the enemy of Democracy and righteousness is banished from power in Europe for ever.

THE open range and prairie land may have attractions of which cowboy yodelers may sing in sentimental tones "Oh give me a home, where the buffalo roam," but the invigorating and virile atmosphere and environment of the mountains cannot be excelled anywhere in the world. Canada's Rocky Mountains are an asset beyond compare and we in this district of the Crows Nest Pass are indeed fortunate to live in such surroundings. You get variety of light and shadow. The mountains reflect the changing vagaries of the weather in a striking and magnificent panorama such as never could be seen on the prairie. It makes one feel that every day is worth living if only to observe the wonders of Nature as reflected in its ever changing moods. Life is, in a measure, always "Springtime in the Rockies," for even the winter seems bright and cheerful, with the evergreen trees and shrubs contrasting with the white mantle of snow.

COLEMAN'S water supply has caused considerable concern, and soft drink manufacturers and purveyors of stronger beverages have received some benefit. The town has been very fortunate in having heretofore an excellent water supply, but with the settling of the areas close to the town, contamination was bound to develop. There is apparently only one way in which to solve the difficulty, and that is to have the water pass through filter beds, either natural or artificial. It is understood a test hole is being bored. The safety of the water supply is most vital, and improvement cannot be made too quickly.

MACLEOD citizens thrilled with pride as they watched their own 93rd Battery parade on Sunday. Young men who have volunteered for the C.A.S.F. as well as those of the non-permanent militia were out in numbers, some returning from camp after two weeks intensive training; others preparing to leave to do their bit by training at Sarcee Camp. It is not only the two weeks camp training for which these men volunteered, but they have attended parades and drills twice a week for many months. Britain was always proud of its volunteer army in earlier days, and its regular army was recruited entirely by voluntary enlistment. But a warlike madman supported by colleagues of like mind made it necessary for Britain to resort to compulsory military service. Yet the democratic people of the Empire accepted the challenge with alacrity, and it is this spirit which will win the war, no matter how fierce or long the struggle may be.

He Came From Fife

Under the heading — "Certain Lethbridge Restaurants Fail to Play the Game," a complaint was voiced by a recent visitor from Coleman to that fair city, famed for its Board of Trade and Lethbridge Herald hospitality and its beautiful Galt Gardens. He states, that "at the week-end the writer made a trip to Lethbridge. Upon entering a cafe an order for fish and chips was placed. On the plate were six chips and three small pieces of fish (he counted 'em). This, with a glass of milk and a small portion of bread cost forty cents. Even the waitress remarked that it was a rather skimpy serving."

"Since the civic officials are so anxious to give the city a good reputation for hospitality to the visitor, it would be well to have the license inspector take more interest in what the restaurants are serving the public and the charges made."

(Ed. Note.) The complaint should remember that 5,000 people were once fed on five loaves and two small fishes, so possibly the restaurant figured that history might repeat itself.

FRED FOUNDS STATIONED AS LIEUTENANT AT KANANASKIS

Fred Founds received instructions at the week end to report on Tuesday at Kananaskis internment camp, where he will be stationed for the present. He has been given the rank of first lieutenant and will serve under Lt.-Col. R. F. Barnes, commandant of the camp. Fred for the past few years has been teller at the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and has been an active member of the Canadian Legion.

Canada's War Effort Requires the Co-Operation Of Everyone

In Great Britain everyone is on the firing line, civilians as well as soldiers. Our part in Canada is to back them to the limit of our money and resources.

Individuals as well as corporations are all being called on to do their share by increased taxation. We should meet these demands cheerfully, knowing that we are getting off lightly compared with people in the homeland.

Our local coal companies hope by providing steady employment to make it easier for all to meet the increased taxation which all are called on to bear.

Modern Scarlet Pimpernel

Englishman Is Helping Stranded British People To Leave France

A former influential English business man of Paris is acting as "Scarlet Pimpernel" to British people stranded in German-occupied France, reports the London Daily Sketch. He works from unoccupied France. Returned Britons report that they received assistance through an "underground" organization, which he has formed. Embassies in the German zone escort them out of it, provide them when necessary with papers, and take them to and over frontiers. One who escaped through this agency is Madeleine Carroll, the English film star.

Invisible Paint

No Such Substance Known Or Used On Aeroplanes

To the "secret" weapons which are supposed to win the war for either the British or the Germans and which are now said to be "invisible" paint or varnish. The British properly brand the tale as "nonsense." Probably German scientists will agree, though the reports of invisible paint came out of Germany.

In Harry Lyndon's "Thackeray" remarks that "the secret was not so thoroughly hushed up that the next day the whole army of a hundred thousand men knew it." So with this fabulous paint or varnish. Everybody knows that a mirror reflects more light than the wall on which it is hung. Rougher surfaces absorb and its visibility at a distance is measurably lowered. Blacken it in addition and visibility is still further reduced if the background is not bright. An "invisible" varnish is an absurdity if we mean the usual highly reflecting surface. Even if an airplane were made of rough, transparent, unbreakable plastic, which might be possible, considering the uses to which synthetic resins are now put, it would still be alighted against the sky or a cloud if only because of its interference with light in different planes. Besides, it would be full of opaque and therefore conspicuous metal, not to mention a pilot who would be anything but Weyl's invisible man.

What we have here is clearly a development of camouflage, which came into its own during the last war. Even then experiments were made with painted patterns of various hues and designs for the protection of airplanes. Coating the under surface of wings and fuselages with a flat black would help in the glare of a searchlight, but not much. So with painting the tops of surfaces with a color like that of the ground as a protection against daylight bombing. No doubt the British are resorting to these tricks. But they are tricks that all military staffs have known for years.—New York Times.

Planes Can Take It

Bienheim Bombers Are Not Easily Put Out Of Action

Just how much punishment a Bienheim bomber of the Royal Air Force can withstand is instanced by the Air Ministry news service which tells of one pilot plunging into the sea on a return flight from Germany. The report says:

"For a few moments the aircraft churned the water and the air intake scooped up gallons. Then the craft bowed upward and both engines picked up again. The pilot was able to fly the bomber safely home, although the aircraft were bent, the tail wheel missing, the bomb hatch stove in, and the shield, cowling and air intake wrecked.

"Another bomber, which had been flying over Rotterdam, meeting the full fire of ground defences, came back to its squadron station although the port oil tank was punctured and the fuselage considerably damaged. Yet both engines functioned normally and the aircraft was back in service two days later."

Bands For Air Force

Training School At Ottawa Will Look After Organization

The boys in air force blue are going musical.

The Royal Canadian Air Force announced that the R.C.A.F. band which played at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto is the forerunner of a number of bands destined to lead the marching feet of air force units all over Canada.

These bands now are in process of organization. Full bands of brasses and reeds will be organized at first, based on a central band at Ottawa, which will provide a training school for other bands. In addition a number of trumpet and drum bands will be organized.

Flying Officer Norman Gilchrist left a Toronto brokerage firm to assume the task of organizing and training the air force bands.

Guard Shetland Islands

Proof that Britain is taking no chances in case the Germans attempt an invasion, is the fact that even the Shetland Islands, like the mainland, have now been put into a state of defence, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported. A watery grave can't always hide what's buried in it. Take the case, for example, of the Monitor, the first ironclad battleship in the world, and which was sunk 77 years ago, with all its crew, having foundered in a heavy storm. For a long time the hulk of the Monitor had been forgotten, but two years ago the president of the National Geographic Society had gone to the bottom of the sea. So photographic pictures were taken—of a variety of altitudes ranging from 50 feet to 27,000 feet above the sea. Special cameras were used, but the conditions were not ideal—a heavy haze hung over the spot, and light did not penetrate to any great depth of water. It is planned to take more photographs. So someday you are likely to see the Monitor—had other ships—as buried in the sea—in the pages of the National Geographic Magazine.

Perhaps in some very naughty moods of yours, you have tried to imagine how you could kidnap some person for the ransom you would exact, and how to get the ransom without your getting caught. And you have never thought of such evil thoughts, you have probably had, with judicial attention, about the schemes devised by kidnappers to get the ransom money without their being embroiled in the net cast by the police. So what do you think of the ways proposed by a kidnapper who sought $100,000 from a manager of Sears, Roebuck stores in the Milwaukee area. But in this case, it was not a kidnapping crime, but an extortion plot. The plotters had no grievances in respect of this store manager; they just wanted money, and picked on a man deemed able to cough up $100,000.

The first effort was a threat to plant a time bomb in a Sears, Roebuck store—this unless Mr. Davis, the store manager, paid up before an specified date. He was directed to wrap $100,000 in small bills in a parcel, this parcel to be dropped, from an aeroplane to be flown over Lake Michigan, to a submarine which would be waiting and which would be visible. This submarine was home-made contraption. But experiments made by the criminals with the submarine revealed the discon-

Income Taxes

Government Will Gladly Receive Payments In Advance

Advance payments of income tax on 1940 income will be gladly received by income tax inspectors of the national revenue department, it was disclosed.

Although payment of income tax is not due until April 30 next year, advance payments in part or in whole will provide the government with additional tax-free money with which to carry on the war.

The department also is urging taxpayers to put a little away each week or month so that when the tax comes they will be in a position to pay.

"The tax payment to be made on or before the 30th of April next year and each year thereafter will be so heavy that it may come as a surprise to those who have to pay it and have not provided for it," the department says in a pamphlet.

The department prepared a table showing weekly or monthly savings that must be made out of weekly or monthly earnings in order to have the money on hand to pay the tax.

For instance, a married person without dependents with an income of $2,000 and taxable to the extent of $35, should put away 57 cent a week, or $2.62 a month; a person earning $3,000 should put away $2.60 a week or $11.25 a month, to pay his tax of $135.

Nothing New For Britain

Empire Has Taken Her Stand Alone During Past Centuries

The other day, Fougasse, the famous British cartoonist, had a picture in Punch. It depicted two soldiers nonchalantly resting on top of a cliff fronting the Channel. "So our poor old Empire is alone in the world," said one. "Aye," returned the other, "but she's got the whole five hundred million of us."

That little item of recollection should serve to hearten any who are disposed to be gloomy. The Empire stands alone. What of it? Has it not been something of a habit of the Empire over the centuries?

It is still far more powerful than all its enemies put together and grows more powerful with every passing hour. That the high winds of war are only serving to root the British oak more deeply than ever is amply apparent and there is a growing disposition throughout the Empire that when peace comes again it shall be the "Pax Britannica" and not merely a lapsed, unorganized, dangerous truce.

Pray God our greatness may not fail.

certing fact that it would not submerge, but not, noble collector of the package; the man who should have picked up the package said, afterwards, that he had got cold feet. From the beginning, the police had suspected a certain man because he had done some metal repair work at one of the stores; they matched pieces of the bomb—which had been exploded as per threat—with scraps found in the abandoned shop of this metal-worker. With this clue they tracked down all three men.

It is the submarine "technique" that is interesting.

Over a thousand golfers met in mid-August at the Forest Hill Field Club, Bloomfield, N.J., to compete in a hole-in-one tournament. This annual tournament was initiated in 1932. All entrants must have made a hole in one on a legitimate golf course. Prior to this year's contest a total of 4,366 hole-in-ones had been made in this hole-in-one event. Jointly they fired 21,800 shots, and in all this time only three golfers hit the hole in one. The most spectacular of these perfect shots was made by Jack Hagen—no relation to the great golfer of the same name. In 1933 he was the first player to tee off, and he dropped his shot on the third of the five shots allotted each contestant.

Talking about golf: when you arrive at the seventh or ninth hole, eat candy and improve your score. This is not just fancy or humor: It has the authority of Dr. Paul Michael, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association. He has made intensive and extensive studies of the effects of sugar on golfers at the middle of the course. From the 11th to the 15th the blood sugar is well below the gasting level. Sugar in the blood provides immediately available energy and therefore offsets fatigue.

Now we may look for new "appeals" in the advertisements of makers of candy and chocolate bars.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 22

THE VOICE OF WISDOM

Golden text: Keep thy heart with all diligence: For out of it are the issues of life. Proverbs 4:23. Lesson: Proverbs 4. Devotional reading: Psalm 15.

Explanations And Comments

A Paternal Exhortation to Get Wisdom and Understanding, Proverbs 4:1-9. The instruction that the teacher is giving was handed down to him by his father, therefore valuable.

The Two Paths, Proverbs 4:10-19. The Wise Man bids his disciple listen to his words, and assures him that his reward will be a long life. "There need be no doubt that, on the whole, loyal devotion to and real possession of heavenly wisdom do tend in the direction of lengthening lives, which are by it delivered from vice and anxieties which cut many a career short." (Alexander MacLaren).

Next follows a description of the way of wisdom, the path of righteousness which he has taught his disciple. "The way of wisdom," says, "Experience teaches fools," but the teacher here would have his disciple learn from his own experience, not from his own eyes. Again, and again throughout the Book of Proverbs it is pointed out that the true wisdom is to be learned from the experience of others. Wisdom, it should be noted, is never used in Proverbs in our sense of the word as pure knowledge; it connotes the faculty of distinguishing between the beneficent and the harmful, between what is good and what is evil.

I have taught thee in the way of wisdom:

I have led thee in paths of uprightness.

"There is a great contrast between those whose early training has been in the ways of wisdom, and those who have been taught in the way of wisdom and let in paths of righteousness. It is a contrast which should constantly be present to the eyes of parents with a warning and an encouragement. The unfortunate child whose infancy is spent in the midst of unwise examples, whose heart receives no instruction from parents' lips, grows up like one stumbling in the dark, and the darkness deepens as he advances; observers cannot but have a sad tale to tell—what it is at which he stumbles. There is the old ingrained vice which comes out again and again." (R. F. Horton).

An Eccentric Guest

Woman Lived At Ritz Hotel In London For 25 Years

The death of Mrs. Edward Hore, one of the best-known figures of pre-war London, is reported by a writer in the London Daily Sketch, who states that Mrs. Hore was a character more extravagant than any other woman he had known. For the last 25 years she had lived all alone at the Ritz Hotel, with no known close living relatives. She was physically of tremendous proportions, nearly always dressed in black and wearing a voluminous wig. Every day for the last quarter of a century she had occupied the Ritz restaurant, the smartest social rendezvous in London, a table under the statue of Neptune. In the early evening diplomats and foreign guests would be surprised to see her appear from the gallery and throw down her evening gown, and her partner would say, "Hey, George! Post these letters."

TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

ALUMINUM FOR AIRCRAFT

The Minister for aircraft production, the Canadian Lord Beaverbrook, issued the following appeal for aluminum to the women of Britain:

"Give us your aluminum. We want it and we want it now. New and old, of every type and description, and all of it."

"We will turn your pots and pans into Spitfires and Hurricanes, Blenheims and Wellingtons. I ask, therefore, if you a similar appeal would respond just as heartily as they are doing across the seas."

Is it not time that the Government of this country should make a similar appeal to Canada? The country is swarming with old and new aluminum pots, pans and other articles which more of us could, for a time, do without.

Aluminum makes excellent culinary utensils and other articles of household and domestic use. Contrary to ignorant opinion aluminum vessels carry no hazard to the user of foods cooked in them. They are safe for us, but as I have already said, we can do without them in a pinch. The need for aluminum must be tremendous in Great Britain. To supply what we can of this material will help to win the war.

Determined To Serve

British Officer Who Won The V.C.

Joins Up As Able Seaman

Lieutenant-Commander Geoffrey Drummond, V.C., one of England's heroes of the First Great War, has joined up again as an able seaman in the Thames river patrol service. Lieut.-Commander Drummond was awarded the Victoria Cross in 1918 for rescuing all the survivors of H.M. Vindicator when she was sunk as a block ship in Ostend harbor. Although wounded in three places he took his motor launch into the harbor under terrific fire from shore batteries. During part of the action he carried a kitten on his shoulder and for that reason became known as the "Whittington V.C."

At the outbreak of the present war he tried to join up again as an officer but as he is 54 was turned down. Determined to serve in some capacity, he signed on as an A.B. (abled-bodied seaman) in the river patrol service and works as an ordinary deckhand, scrubbing decks and washing dishes.

CHAPTER XVII.

The news that Mr. Stratford Harlow was entertaining the Macedonian delegates at his house in Park Lane was not of such vital importance that it deserved any great attention from the London press. A three-line paragraph at the foot of a column confirmed the date and the hour. For Jim this proved to be unnecessary, since a reminder came by the second post on the following day, requesting the pleasure of his company at the reception.

"They might have asked you to the dinner," said Elk. "Especially as it's free. I'll bet that bird keeps a good brand of cigar."

"Write and ask for a box; you'll get it," said Jim, and Elk sniffed. "That'd be against the best interests of the service," he said virtuously. "Do you think I'd get 'em if I mentioned your name?"

"You'd get the whole Havana crop," said Jim. "I've got a pick. Anyway, there'll be plenty of cigars for you on the night of the reception."

"Me?" Elk brightened visibly. "He didn't send me an invite."

"Nevertheless you are going," said Jim definitely. "I'm anxious to know just what this reception is all about. I suppose it's a wonderful thing to stop these Macedonian brigands from shooting at one another, but I can't see the excuse for a swagger London party."

"Maybe he's got a girl he wants to show off," suggested Elk helpfully. "You've a despicable mind," was Jim's only comment.

He was not the only hard-worked man in London that week. Every night he walked with Elk and stood opposite the new Rata building in Moorgate street. Each room was brilliantly illuminated, cable messengers came and went; and he learned from one of the extra staff whom he had put into the building that even Ellenbury, who usually did not allow himself to be identified publicly with the business, was working till 3 o'clock every morning.

Scotland Yard has many agencies throughout the world, and from these the full extent of Rata's activities began dimly to be seen.

"They've sold nothing, but they're going to sell," reported Jim to his chief at the Yard, "and it's going to be the biggest bear movement that we have seen in our generation."

His chief was a natural enemy to the superlatives of youth.

"If it were an offense to 'bear' the market I should have no neighbors," he said icily. "Almost every stockbroker I know has taken a flutter at some time or other. My information is that the market is firm and healthy. If Harlow is really behind this coup, then he looks like losing money. Why don't you see him and ask him plainly what is the big idea?"

Jim made a little face. "I shall see him to-night at the party," he said, "but I doubt very much whether I shall have a chance of worming my way into his confidence."

Elk was not a society man. It was his dismal claim that not in any rank of the metropolitan police force was there a man with less education than himself. Year after year, with painful regularity, he had failed to pass the examination which was necessary for promotion to the rank of inspector. History doored him; "dates of royal accessions and expedient assassinations drove him to despair. Sheer merit eventually secured him the rank which his lack of book learning denied him."

"How'd I do?" he had come up to Jim's room arrayed for the reception, and now he turned solemnly on his feet to reveal the unusual splendor of evening dress. The tail coat was creased, the trousers had been treated by an amateur cleaner, for they reeked of petrol, and the shirt was soft and yellow with age.

"It's the white waistkit that worries me," he complained. "My young woman servant says you only wear white waistkits for wedding's. But I'm sure the party's going to be a fancy one. You wearin' a white waistkit?"

"I shall probably wear one," said Jim soothingly. "And you look a peach, Elk!"

"They'll take me for a waiter, but I'm used to that," said Elk. "Last time I went to a party they made me serve the drinks. Quite a lot never got by!"

"I can't wait you to fix a place where I can find you," said Jim, struggling with his tail coat. "That may be very necessary."

"The bar," said Elk ironically. "If it's called a buffet then I'll be at the buffet!"

There was a little crowd gathered before the door of Harlow's house. They made a lane clear of the striped awning beneath which the guests were waiting. For the first time Jim saw the millionaire's domestic staff in the glory of fine raiment, with their powdered hair, their alicen calves and glittering aiguillettes. A gorgeous creature took his card and did not question the presence of Elk, who stroled nonchalantly past the guard-ian.

"White waistkit," he hissed. "I knew it would be fancy. The white doors of the library were thrown open and here Mr. Harlow was receiving his guests. Dinner was over and the privileged guests were standing in a half circle about him—a dark-faceted Bulgarian with a sweeping black mustache the most conspicuous of the group."

"White waistkit," murmured Elk, "and the bar's in the corner of the room."

Harlow had already seen them, and though Mr. Elk was an uninvited guest, he greeted him with warmth. To his companion he gave a warm and hearty hand.

"Have you seen Sir Joseph?" he asked.

Jim had seen the Foreign Secretary that afternoon to learn whether he had made any fresh plans, but had found that Sir Joseph was adhering to his original intention of attending the reception only. He was telling Harlow this, when there was a stir at the door, and, looking around, he saw the Foreign Secretary enter the room and stop to shake hands with a friend at the door. He wore his black velvet jacket, his long black tie straggled artistically over his white shirt front. Sir Joseph had been pilloried as the worst-dressed man in London, and yet, for all his slovenliness of attire, he had the distinctive air of a grand gentleman.

He fixed his horn-rimmed pince-nez and favored Jim with a friendly smile as he made his way to his host.

"I was afraid I could not come," he said in his husky voice. "The truth is, some foolish newspaper has been giving prominence to a ridiculous story that would make the rounds a few weeks ago, and I have to be in my place to answer a question."

"Rather late for question time, Sir Joseph," smiled Harlow. "I always thought they were taken before the real business of Parliament began."

Sir Joseph nodded in his jerky way. "Yes, yes," he said, a little testily, "but when questions of policy arise, a member gives me private notice of his intention of asking such a question. It can be put at any period."

He swept Parliament and vexatious questioners out of existence with a gesture of his hand.

Jim watched the two men talking together. They were in a deep and earnest conversation, and he gathered from Sir Joseph's gesticulations that the Minister was feeling very strongly on the subject under discussion. Presently they strolled through the crowded library into the vestibule, and after a decent interval Jim went on their trail. He signalled his companion from the buffet, and Mr.

Elk, wiping his mustache hurriedly, joined him as he reached the door.

The guests were still arriving; the vestibule was crowded, and progress was slow. Presently a side door in the hall opened, and over the heads of the crush he saw Sir Joseph and Mr. Harlow come out and make for the street. Harlow turned back and met the detectives.

"A short visit," he said, "but worth while."

Jim reached the steps in time to see the Foreign Minister's car moving into Park Lane and he had a glimpse of Sir Joseph as he waved his hand in farewell. . . .

He stayed long enough to justify a paragraph in the morning newspaper—and the uncharitable will believe that that was all I wanted! You're not going?"

It was Harlow speaking.

"I'm sorry. I also have an engagement—in the House!" said Jim good-humoredly, and Mr. Harlow laughed.

"I see. You were here on duty as well, eh? Well, that's a very wise precaution. I now realize that not only are you a lucky but you are a shortsighted young man."

"Why?" asked Jim, so sharply that Harlow laughed.

"I will tell you one of these days," he said.

Churchill Analysis

The Man Who Can Reveal The National Spirit Of The Nation

He is a voluminous writer and an admirable journalist. Accustomed to preparing his speeches with care he puts the same skill into his writing, and the same eloquence, too. He is not to be regarded as a writer of model English; for his style is flamboyant and aimed too cunningly at effect.

What it is that gives his wireless talks so strong an appeal? Most people regard him as the best tonic of the war. He speaks with assurance, frankly, and with studied reserve. There is an air of indiscretion combined with authority. He employs oratorical skill subdued to the medium of the spoken word.

But while these qualities help to make the talks successful, what puts them in the first class is something else, throughout, there is more than is expressed in actual words, a tone of conviction, of indissoluble purpose, of certainty, as though the cause were already won. This is not boastfulness, though he does boast, nor is it arrogance, though he is arrogant; it is something the voices of hardly any of our other politicians have.

Certainly none who speak for other nations, Hitler least of all.

It is something characteristically English, a quality instantly recognized, the sign of the peculiar quality of our national spirit. The same quality, as to be heard throughout England distinguished in common speech, and echoed in the daily talk of men and women. That is why the response to Churchill so so eager; he utters what the ordinary man thinks in accents that the ordinary man recognizes to be true. —London Reader's News.

Must Continue Advance

Or Nazi Kamikaze Gained For Attack Will Go Backward

One curious aspect in the present war is the paradox which even victory is to be heard throughout England distinguished in common speech, and echoed in the daily talk of men and women. That is why the response to Churchill so so eager; he utters what the ordinary man thinks in accents that the ordinary man recognizes to be true. —London Reader's News.

At this point in his triumphal advance Herr Hitler, and everyone else, knows he would find it most convenient to stop the war now; but Herr Hitler, and everyone else, knows he cannot stop the war now. Yet to carry on the war indefinitely will defeat Germany economically, socially, and finally, by force of arms.

Is Berlin now going more cautiously as this paradox of victory becomes more apparent? There is something about Nazi-ism that is not unlike a toy gas balloon, rising higher and higher, swelling bigger and bigger in false majesty until—

Citizen Asks Question

Asks one Hugh T. Calderwood, of Glasgow, Montana, in a letter to the Chicago Daily News: "England is fighting our battle and her navy is our first line of defence. Why are we not over there helping her hammer and tongs? Are we going to wait until the last Englishman is down before we wake up?" We wouldn't know—but we still have hopes that it won't be so.

It is becoming more and more difficult for the average American to think of Canada as a foreign country.

Command Of Seas

British Export Trade Has Been Maintained In All Parts Of The World

Harcourt Johnstone, secretary of the overseas trade department, said in a review that "after 12 months of war, Britain is still delivering the goods to her overseas customers and she will carry on in the second year as she has done in the first."

"Our command of the seas, the ability to provide shipping, and special allocation by the government of raw materials for export, and the limitation of home consumption, are all ensuring the maintenance of our export trade side by side with the intensification of our munitions output," he said.

British export trade has been maintained with all parts of the world outside the territories occupied by the enemy, he added. German bogus offers to South American countries to deliver goods in September and October, "when Britain has been defeated," cut no ice in the face of solid British achievements.

"The facts are that there is no sign of a single German ship delivering a single bale of goods anywhere across the seven seas," he said. "The Nazi flag has been driven from the seas while our flag flies everywhere. Typical of this Nazi propaganda are the fanciful German stories of Lancashire having been put out of action by air raids. Lancashire has given its answer with increased cotton production. During the first three weeks of August—normally a slack time for seasonal reasons—Lancashire's cotton industry delivered 55,000 bales a week, compared with a weekly average of 51,000 bales for the whole of last year."

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Whatever happens in the world, let us sing and say. We will wait what God the Lord will do.—Martin Luther.

I endeavor to subdue circumstances to myself, and not myself to circumstances.—Hume.

At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom and the occasion for a victory over evil.—Mary Baker Eddy.

He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper; but he is more excellent who can suit his temper to any circumstances.—Hume.

The height of human wisdom is to bring our tempers down to our circumstances, and to make a calm within, under the weight of the greatest storm without.—Defoe.

Calm Soul of all things, make it mine.

Awarded Flying Cross

Calgary Aviator Receives Recognition For Bravery

Acting Flt. Lt. Sidney Robert Gibbs, born at Calgary in 1916, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross after an exploit in which he destroyed three Heinkels and damaged five others while on a long distance reconnaissance flight to Tromsø, Norway.

The citation said Gibbs was captain of a Sunderland flying boat detailed in August to carry out a reconnaissance of the Arctic port region.

It added that Gibbs brought his machine safely home after a flight of 15½ hours with valuable information on shipping in the Tromsø area.

"His excellent reconnaissance work includes locating of survivors of the Andania and guiding a destroyer to the rescue," it continued. "His perseverance and undimmed devotion to duty have proved invaluable."

Gibbs was educated at Santa Cruz high school in California and Peterborough, England. He became a pupil pilot of the R.A.F. in 1936. In July he was mentioned in dispatches.

Kept Her Busy

With bombs falling around her, Mrs. Parks, a London air raid warden, rescued and tended an injured mother and baby; put out several fires with a stirrup pump; sent a soldier to a warden's post with concise reports; returned to her post, found the warden stunned, so manned it alone for eight hours.

Little or no vitamin C is lost when tomatoes are home-canned by the cold or the hot-packed method, tests show.

If air was sold for 12 cents a quart, it would cost you over $2,000 a day to breathe.

FIX UP CHAIRS FOR FALL WITH TRIM SLIP COVERS

Simple to Fit any Chair or Sofa

What a blessing slip covers are for worn, shabby chairs! Like new upholstery at a rich beige with a green and rust all-over motif. Seams are bound in beige and the dounce is smartly pleated.

Smart now are covers of colorful cotton crash like the one we've shown in the picture. It's a new type of all-over motif. Seams are bound in beige and the dounce is smartly pleated.

The secret of making a well-fitting cover is that you smooth the fabric over the old upholstery, pin where seams will be and cut leaving 1½-inch seam allowance. Work a section at a time—first inside back and seat, then arms, sides, back. The dounce you add last to finished cover.

To fit a barred chair like the one pictured, smooth fabric down inside back, cut at bottom and piece as the diagram shows, or, if fabric is wide, make two long darts in place of seams. Then sew up seams and attach a 4-inch bias band along the bottom.

In our 32-page booklet you find directions for making slip covers for all types of chairs and sofas, including barrel and channel-back styles. Explains every step: estimating material, cutting, stitching, finishing. Suggests fabrics, colors, trimmings.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of this booklet. Write: Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175, McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

Defensive Armament

Sixty-Eight Merchant Vessels In Canada To Work With Navy

Defensive armament has been fitted to 68 merchant vessels in Canada since the outbreak of war. It was announced by naval headquarters.

The department makes a sharp distinction between this type of armament and that placed upon merchant vessels which are transformed into auxiliary cruisers to work with the navy.

These 68 vessels, ranging from fast liners to slow-moving freighters, have been fitted with stern guns which can aim only at pursuing targets, hence the term "defensive" armament.

Women weavers in London are taking an active part in Britain's export drive by weaving material which, before the war, was imported.

The National Union of Teachers has lent the government £25,000 free of interest.

"Then, what is first?" he demanded.
